CIS 8299:
Topics in Information Systems Management

Prerequisites:

CIS 8000 – CIS 8050; Others depending on topic

Catalog Description:

Because of the many advances in information technology and the corresponding development techniques, new business opportunities are constantly emerging, and with them the need to manage these applications effectively. This course explores these new application areas and the management approaches needed to make them successful.